- (57) Statement of Newness and Distinctiveness: Digital Media Presentation Kiosk Monopoly is claimed on the distinct three sided configuration and design of a Digital Media Presentation Kiosk. This apparatus is specially designed to be table mounted, portable, visually appealing and minimalist. The Digital Media Presentation kiosk is generally constructed from plastic, metal or glass component parts and contains necessary electrical components to drive the integrated LCD, Plasma or other suitable digital display screen/s. The general shape, size and proportions of the Digital Media Presentation Kiosk, as illustrated in this application, are distinct and unique, as is the functionality as a Digital Media Presentation Kiosk . Apart from the base, the integrated digital screen/ s extends towards every edge and corner or across surfaces creating a maximum screen viewing area. Each screen is generally flat or may exhibit a subtle curve around the longitudinal axis for styling. This results in visually modern, clean and unobstructed surfaces. The display screens and adaptable technologies are not limited to LCD, plasma or flexible flat screen types or in technological specification such as full surface interactive digital touch, 3D, haptic feedback or wireless interfacing. With reference to the design illustrations provided with this application, these particular technologies are adaptable and configurable to the forms presented, depending on customer and technologies available. Generally, thin layer type screens with the widest possible viewing angles are most desirable for integration into this product.

- (57) Statement of Newness and Distinctiveness: Digital Media Presentation Kiosk Monopoly is claimed on the distinct vertical tube configuration and design of a Digital Media Presentation Kiosk. This apparatus is specially designed to be table mounted, portable, visually appealing and minimalist. The Digital Media Presentation Kiosk is generally constructed from plastic, metal or glass component parts and contains necessary electrical components to drive the integrated LCD, Plasma or other suitable digital display screen/s. The general shape, size and proportions of the Digital Media Presentation Kiosk, as illustrated in this application, are distinct and unique, as is the functionality as a Digital Media Presentation Kiosk. Apart from the base, the integrated digital screen/s extends towards every edge and corner or across surfaces creating a maximum screen viewing area. Each screen is generally flat or may exhibit a subtle curve around the longitudinal axis for styling. This results in visually modern, clean and unobstructed surfaces . The display screen/s and adaptable technologies are not limited to LCD, plasma or flexible flat screen types or in technological specification such as full surface interactive digital touch, 3D, haptic feedback or wireless interfacing. With reference to the design illustrations provided with this application, these particular technologies are adaptable and configurable to the forms presented, depending on customer requirements and technologies available. Generally, thin layer type screens with the widest possible viewing angles are most desirable for integration into this product
